Russians In West Galicia Declare Austro-German Offensive Is Broken.
—New Developments
Under Way.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, May 14.—For the first time in the past six months the authors of German and French official announcements on foreign affairs have ments on progress of hostilities, and themselves in agreement. The German communication admits the truth of the more important of the claims made by General Joffre, French commander-in-chief, as to great successes won by the French between La Bassée and Arras.

If this attack can be pushed home, the consequences will be still more marked in the opinion of British military commentators, who are claiming today a little further advance by the French will open a conspicuous gap in the German line, a development which will necessitate the falling back of the Germans on the wide

To the north of La Basse the Germans are doing little more than holding their own, but at the same time they are keeping great masses of German troops engaged who otherwise would be available against the French advance.

In the eastern field the German forces in Poland, who are said to number a million, and a half men are reported to be within twenty miles of Przemyśl. The Russians would appear to be developing counter-stroke both on the west Galician front and in Bukovina and they claim successes, but military men here are careful of committing themselves on the outcome of these activities, pending further developments.

The hint made by Lord Haldane, of the possibility of conscription, has been interpreted in some quarters as meaning there is now less confidence that the war will be over by fall, and the authorities are making their dispositions in case another winter campaign is necessary.

Check German Drive.

Petrograd, via London, May 14.—The Russians have fallen back upon strong positions along the river San, which runs north and south through Galicia. They now regard the German drive through West Galicia as having been checked permanently.

The arrival of fresh Russian troops, which successfully engaged a German flank has relieved the pressure on the Russian center. These attacks on the German wing, in which the Russians have been reported by have been supported by mountain artillery, have been prosecuted with unusual fierceness, the activity noticed along the center of the Polish front near Rawa is said to have been due to the Russian initiative with the object of holding the Germans in their position.

The retreat of the Russian center from Lupkow is explained as due not to pressure from the Germans but to the exposed situation of the Russians' at that point by rolling back the Russian right flank. This wing rests on the lower Wisłoka at Denwica, twenty miles east of Tarnow. It is strongly entrenched.

Germans Menace Uzsok.

With the checking of the German eastward movement between the Wisłoka and Carpathians there are already indications of new Austro-German offensive against the Russian left in the direction of Stry and Uzsok. Evidence of this is seen in the transfer of German troops eastward through Lupkow. In view of this new activity, the Russians attach great importance to the recent success further east, in the Dneister country, where they occupy a 45 mile front. To the north the Russians have been able to hold the Germans on a line between Mitau and Kolmo, and have driven them out of Rakola, midway between Korno and Resslenn. The grain elevators at Libeau are said to have been empty before the German occupation of the town.

BASEBALL SQUABBLE UNSETTLED AS YET

Outlaws Shows no Signs of Weakening Despite Claims of Organized Clubs.

(By Hal Sheridan.)

New York, May 14.—Despite Organized Baseball's frequent outbursts against the Federal League, the outlaws seem to be holding their own. And from recent events it looks as if they can continue the pace. Doubtless it is costing them a bunch of money but thus a different story.

One of the strongest signs of the Federal League's ability to remain in the game is their apparent indifference to Organized Baseball's advances for a permanent peace. Since the season started three offers to establish a practical working peace agreement have been turned down by the Feds. At least this is what Robert E. Ward says, and the Tip Top owner ought to know.

At any rate, it is known that peace conferences, of a sort, have been held between the two organizations in the past few weeks. Further it is no secret that nothing has come of these meetings, which lends color to the Fed's statement that they don't care a fig for Organized Baseball and are perfectly satisfied to play the game according to their own rules.

The older baseball organizations are employing different tactics than they practiced last year. In the past, the Feds have been content to hold a Fed player who was paddocked to one of the outlaw teams. Last season's attitude was radically different. But with the Feds refusing to tackle players in the two other big leagues who are bound by strong contracts, the National and American leagues found such a course mighty unpopular and abandoned the open warfare. The Feds are acting as gentlemen as outlaws can and for their own protection Organized Baseball is doing the same.

Whether the Feds are losing money is a mystery which concerns Federal team owners more than anyone else. If they are playing at a loss, as O. B. claims every other day, Organized Baseball should have just that much less to worry about.

Federal league owners have adopted baseball as a business proposition and seem perfectly content to stand whatever loss occurs in making it a paying one. In their second year the Feds have eight teams playing a regular schedule and doubtless a few of them are making expenses. That in itself is a worthy achievement and the men who brought this about will probably realize a profit on their investment in time. And until that time comes the men backing the outlaw teams can afford to lose considerable money, as they all are men of independent wealth.

In the money losing game Organized Baseball is entitled to a little credit itself. What about the money spent in fighting the outlaws? No one pretends to know how much it is, but it is no meager amount. And the sad part about this lost O. B. cash is that it is probably gone forever, for gate receipts in Organized Baseball parks are not growing larger. In fact, they may even be decreasing.

SPORTS POPULAR IN FRANCE DURING WAR.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Paris, May 14.—Practically a universal demand has just gone up in France for the reopening of the French racing circuit. L'Auto, Anteuil, Chantilly, Maisons-Laffitte and Deauville, it is insisted, should at least be reopened and the leading events, such as the Grand Prix, the Derby, the Diane and the Grand Critérium should be run.

Backers of the movement insist that not only the reopening of the race courses but to present any harmonious contrast with the great struggle in which France is engaged, but they insist that the struggle itself has made the reopening of the courses all the more imperative. Countless thousands of the best horses of France have already been killed in the war, they point out. Thousands more must yet die, and it is imperative that France should not allow the lapse for a single moment her efforts at improving the breeding of horses. With the close season then ever before for rearing the best horses possible.

LAKE SHORE LEAGUE STARTS SEASON SUNDAY.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Milwaukee, Wis., May 14.—The Lake Shore League teams will play their second games of the season tomorrow. Racine will play the Kosdukos here; the Leaders will play at Kenosha; and Manitowoc will book up. President Klocksin has completed the schedule, which calls for 22 games. The season includes three holidays, Decoration Day, Independence Day and Labor day, and closes Sept. 22.

Williams' nines have won seven out of nine ball games from Yale since 1906, but of course we only fear of championship games when Yale is playing Harvard or Princeton, the two other (and two other only) teams eligible to play for the college championship.

MILLIONAIRE BRAGG TO DRIVE PEUGEOT

Caleb Bragg Drives For The True
Love Of The Sport.—Barney Oldfield Obtaining Cigars for the Race.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Indianapolis, May 14.—Caleb Bragg, the real millionaire of the automobile racing game, with twelve millions in cold, hard cash to his credit, has signed to pilot Frank Galvin's Peugeot in the next Indianapolis 500 mile race. Galvin being laid up as the result of injuries received when his car overturned in practice recently.

Bragg is one of the most famous drivers in the game, having won the 1910 grand prize and numerous other contests. Why he should want to drive a racing car, in view of his tremendous wealth, is a mystery. As Ralph DePalma puts it, if he had as much money as that chap, I'd wrap myself up in cotton wool and never step off the sidewalk, instead of fooling around in a racing car.

The answer is that Bragg drives simply for the love of the sport. Despite all he has at stake, he takes chances with any of them, as he once track race at Brighton Beach several years ago, he first shot through the fence and then back onto the track again, winning the race, with spinning wheels and a coil of wire around his radiator.

Barney Oldfield Arrives.
Barney Oldfield, cigar chewing champion, has arrived in Indianapolis for the next Indianapolis 500 mile race with the German Bugatti he is to drive in that contest.

Barney has had the car thoroughly overhauled in a factory at Cleveland, and says it is in shape to win any conflict. That it did not do better at the hands of Johnny Marquis on the coast, he says, was due to the fact that Marquis was waiting for the Indianapolis race, and therefore gave it no fair chance. The first time he drove it himself, he says, he did the Venice course in record time.

Barney predicts a link record for his machine. Made in a French part of Germany, Alsace-Lorraine, by an Italian manufacturer, Ettore Bugatti, it is to be driven by an Irish-American. Some speed creation.

LATE RALLY BY SOX BEATS WALTER JOHNSON—4 TO 3

Chicago, May 14.—With the count 2 to 0 against them, the Chicago Americans staged a rally in the seventh and ninth innings, that was a thriller and drove home three runs in the lucky innings and then beat the mighty Johnson in the ninth.

The Washington meteor looked as good as he ever did, despite his notorious jumping contract, with the Feds. His mates got one in the fifth and the Senators repeated in the sixth. Thereupon fans cheered up a defeat for the Cubs, never dreaming that a fiery Eddie Collins walked for a starter in the seventh. Fournier smashed a single which put Collins on third. J. Collins was next and he clouted for a screaming single that scored the base runners. Weaver scored the third run in this inning. With the score tied again in the eighth, J. Collins proved lucky when he ducked to avoid being hit and he had accidentally tapped the ball just over Johnson's head. Weaver was safe on a bunt and Brief ended the game with a single. Cicotte, the knuckle ball king, opposed Johnson while he had his troubles he curbed the Washington team in great style.

Cuba Lose Again.
Brooklyn—Wilbur Good saved the game for the Cubs against the Dodgers yesterday. In the eighth inning, the score was 3 to 2. Good made a sensational catch in which he injured his shoulder causing his removal from the game. Schulte replaced him and dropped a fly but accidentally tapped the ball just over Johnson's head. Weaver was safe on a bunt and Brief ended the game with a single. Cicotte, the knuckle ball king, opposed Johnson while he had his troubles he curbed the Washington team in great style.

FOURTH GRADE DEFEAT FIFTH IN GAME PLAYED ON THURSDAY MORNING

The Fourth grade of the Sister's school won from the fifth grade sluggers yesterday morning by a score of 35 to 15. Byrne and Cullen did the hurling for the winners with "Don" Dawson on the firing line for the losers. Ryan inspired the game. The line-ups were:

Fourth Grade—P. Leary, c; Byrne, p and ss; Cullen, ss and p; Kellogg, lb; M. Clark, 2b; Denning, 3b; E. Clark, 1b; J. Leary, cf; Hill, rf.
Fifth Grade—Sitner, c; Dawson, p; Butler, ss; Cohen, 2b; Watson, 2b; G. Clark, 3b; Kelly, 1st; Dooley, rf; Brake, lf.

SIX LONDON SURGEONS RECEIVE BIG SALARIES AS SPECIAL ADVISORS.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
London, May 14.—Six prominent London physicians and surgeons are receiving $25,000 a year each from the British Navy as special advisers during the war. This fee, moreover, does not prevent them pursuing their private practice during time when they are not occupied with government business.

This information was given in the House of Commons by the Financial Secretary to the Admiralty in reply to a member's question. The questioner asked that in his opinion and that of several other members, the expense was not justified, and he announced that he would bring the matter up for discussion at a later date.

Sport Snap Shots MORRIS MILLER

A game in Pittsburgh between the Reds and Pirates was called at the end of the eighth inning, with the score a tie. It was called at 5 o'clock by agreement, so the teams could catch a train. Wonder if the agreement was with the time and the expectation of seeing the game go to a finish?

Fournier, who played first base for the White Sox last year, is the team's leading slugger this spring. He is in the outfield and playing a peppery game.

Benny Kauff wastes half a column of space complaining that he has not had his say in the matter and threatens to tell it. Anyone who cannot say what he has to say in half a column has nothing to say.

Jimmy Clabby is to be one of the principals in a twenty-round fight that the Tortoise Burns combination will stage at New Orleans July 4. An opponent for Clabby now is being sought. The fight is planned to be the first of a series of twenty-round elimination affairs for the middleweights. Mike Gibbons, Jack Dillon or Yone Ahearn will be Clabby's independent day opponent.

Ned Harris, the Penn football captain-elect, is proud of his sister. At Bryn Mawr college she won the individual cup in the interclass meet.

It had come. Wild Bill Donovan, boss of the New York Yanks, is out with the announcement that his club will copy the pennant. "We have already met some of the most likely pennant contenders for 1915 and our record indicates we have more than held our own," said Wild Bill. "I feel confident we will be able to stick."

In first division throughout the season and wind up pretty close to the top. Look at the way Caldwell, Fisher, Keating, McHale and Warhop are going and you will understand one of the principal things on which my confidence is based. With the Giants going bad, it looks like a golden opportunity for the American league in the country's metropolis.

Coch Guy Nickalls of the Yale university carmen has a new English eight-oared shell and English-made oars for his varsity crew. The boats are equipped with the thole pig rig. The seats, however, are rigged in a straight line instead of being adjusted in zigzag fashion along the keel, which is the English style of rowing.

The Canadian Yacht club has sent 119 members to war. There are 1,941 members included in the organization.

"Snowy" Baker, the Australian boxing promoter, announces the professional debut of Harold Hardwick, a versatile antipodean athlete who won the amateur championship of the British empire at the Empire games in London. His record is such as to cause him to be regarded in England, Australia, and elsewhere as a most promising candidate for the heavyweight boxing championship of the world.

Dell the Dodgers' new pitcher, is going along at a good clip. "Wheeler," as he is known, gave a trial by the St. Louis Nationals a few seasons ago.

San Francisco has a golf course located on the roof of the Olympic club. The club has constructed a foot putting green with real turf on the roof, and one of the new driving greens, which by means of a cleverly devised series of pockets, enables players to play a complete eighteen-hole course, using all the clubs.

Cadet Robert R. Neyland of the Fourth congressional district of Texas, whose home is in Greenville, Tenn., has won nineteen straight games for the West Point baseball team. Neyland went through last season without a defeat, beating the Navy, in 1913 and again in 1914. He is twenty-three years old, and is also a clever boxer and football player.

THE UNIVERSITY.

Here are some facts that appear in the recent report of the University survey to which the authorities objected. They are worth reading and storing up in your minds for future reference when the university lobby becomes more violent in the legislature and insists that it is being ill-treated by the means of a paid press bureau and a bigoted press of the country. No one questions the fact the University of Wisconsin is a great institution and that the citizens are proud of it, but delve a bit deeper and read the following facts found in the survey in question:

"One-third to one-fourth of the total running expenses" was the president's estimate of the cost of research; i. e., $674,333 (on basis of one-third) or $867,777 (on basis of one-fourth) will be spent for research during 1914-15. One-half the university payroll for resident instruction, excluding summer session, is paid in salaries alone for graduate and research work.

500 Wisconsin communities (with population ranging from 100 to 2,800) had no student at the university during 1913-14. 757 Wisconsin communities have had no correspondence student in eight years. Non-resident students have increased 213 per cent—Wisconsin students 86 1/2 per cent in the regular session during the last ten years.

Only 27 per cent of teachers and 21 per cent of the principals in Wisconsin high schools are from the university.

Main hall (said to be the most crowded building on the campus) was gingering building, 5 per cent; North Hall, 41 per cent during second semester, 1913-14 (on 44 hour week basis).

Forty-five classes had only one student November, 1914; during the second semester, 1913-14, there were 22 such classes, costing in salary alone $4,427 or $200 per person per semester. 163 different standards for grading students' papers.

Samples of recommendations based on conditions found: That the university budget be presented to the legislature in printed form and in ample time for study and consideration by legislators and public.

That the budget be presented to the legislature by the regents rather than by the president of the university.

That more specific information be given in the university budget.

That self-supporting dormitories be established.

That president, deans and department chairmen visit classrooms for the purpose of encouraging strong points and eliminating weak points in student instruction.

That research work of faculty and students be more carefully supervised by requiring a definite plan of work, progress reports, etc.

That university catalogue be completely reorganized to be more helpful to student (details in exhibit 38).

That in the interest of democracy and efficiency the regents constitute a university faculty of fourteen members plus the president as chairman.

That a committee of three be appointed to investigate the present reasons for foreign language requirements.

That effort be made to reduce the time for registration from three days to two days or even to a limit of one day for registration without class meetings.

That cost of living at Madison be definitely ascertained by the university.

That responsibility for training teachers at the university be centralized.

That the university board of visitors be state-created rather than re-created as at present; and that the term be reduced to three years without possibility of reappointment. Samples of suggestions based on other facts: Too much emphasis on research and graduate work at expense of undergraduate instruction. Too many independent departments—reducing contact of deans and president with instructional work and increasing cost of administration. Too much time and money spent on examinations ($125,000 a year by university and students). Too few student convocations. Too few courses in the problems of citizenship, municipal, county and state government. Too little contact with other state educational activities.

A SOLEMN WARNING.
"The Imperial German government will not expect the government of the United States to omit any word or any act necessary to the performance of its sacred duty of maintaining the rights of the United States and its citizens, and of safeguarding their free exercise and enjoyment."

By these words President Wilson has sent to the German emperor and his advisors food for careful consideration. There is no mistaking the position of this government. There is no room for doubt or quibble what it is. It is in a position in which the American people will sustain their government in whatever measures may be necessary.

The president's message loses nothing from its entire temperance of language in which it is framed. It is absolutely courteous. It is absolutely firm and decisive. It gives Germany the opportunity:

1. To disavow the acts of its naval officers.

2. To make reparation "so far as reparation is possible for injuries which are without measure."

3. To prevent the recurrence of such injuries.

4. To take the consequences of refusal of these demands.

It announces in firm language that a warning published in newspapers of this country, even though bearing the imperial seal of approval, is not an abrogation of the rights of American citizens to travel on the high seas in even boats of the belligerent power.

The objection to the German submarine fighting is strongly denounced, yet in such language that it fits the case at hand exactly. The United States has spoken. The answer is with Germany. The final word is awaited from Berlin. The choice of war or peace remains with Germany and not the United States.

Colonel Roosevelt's safety valve pops too often and with too little reason these days. On the other hand Taft has proven his worth as a citizen of the United States by his words of caution to the American public and support of the president in the present crisis.

When in doubt display the American flag. After the German government reads Wilson's communication there will be no doubt where the American people, as a people, stand, regardless of former condition of servitude.

Michigan is already reporting crop damage by frost, but when the peaches and small fruits finally reach the market they will be as plentiful as ever.

Thus far Italy has been able to keep out of the fighting, but now that the peace cabinet has resigned something may happen unexpectedly.

On these fine spring mornings the sun sets a good example by getting up as soon as it is daylight.

Enlisted in the cause of civilization the United States can not go very far wrong in the long run.

Rubes.
A New York city minstrel company had fought hard luck in the west. Business had been fearful and the troupe struck Pleasant Valley without a cent.

It was a cold, drizzly night. The company had arrived late and it was decided to make a street-parade at 6 o'clock. One was hungry, and there wasn't 45 cents in the bunch. They plodded around in the mud with the cold wind whistling around their legs. On both sides of the street were well-lighted houses. Families eating their supper could be seen through the windows by the tired and hungry minstrels from New York.

"It looks nice in there," said a fat cornet player between sobs.

"Yes," replied the clarinet player with a sigh. "Those are the people we call 'rubes.'"

Hints to Automobiles.
Slow down when passing a policeman, but at no other time. Don't blow the horn. To blow the horn stamps you as a green driver and one who would rather miss a pedestrian than run over him.

When you get a nervous person in the car with you, cut out the muffler, push the throttle open to the last notch and miss fifteen delivery wagons by a hair's breadth, which shows the passenger that you have got plenty of power and that you are a dare-devil driver.

Little Hints.

YEAR SENTENCE IN MILWAUKEE SCHOOL IS DECIDED UPON

JUDGE MAXFIELD DECIDES TO SEND AGNES BUMGART TO MILWAUKEE INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS.

SAVED PRISON TERM

Arrested Last Friday After Cashing Check at Local Bank—Sentenced to One Year in Prison Saturday—Girl Now Will Have Moderate Imprisonment.

Agnes Bumgart, alias Agnes Smith, the pretty and pretty Detroit Miss whom the Pinkerton detective agency and the Wisconsin Bankers' association have been warning their clients against, has escaped a year's sentence in Waupun meted out to her by Judge Maxfield last Saturday morning and was this afternoon sentenced to one year in the Milwaukee Industrial school for girls.

When this will end the prosecution of the other charges pending in other cities it is hard to state, but it is certain at any rate no matter what happens to her in the future she will have the kindest of feelings for her treatment by the court officials. Just when she will be taken to Milwaukee could not be learned of the court officials.

This afternoon at two o'clock her case was recalled in the municipal court and after a lengthy and fluent report on her good characteristics and the subject of her January arrest, Judge Maxfield gave as his new sentence, one year in the industrial school for girls at Milwaukee, the sentence to begin today.

Attorney Dougherty was appointed by the court last Monday to investigate after Miss Bumgart had confessed to obtaining forty dollars at the Rock County National bank, pleaded guilty, and been sentenced to Waupun for one year on the Saturday previous.

Judge Maxfield explained that when he sentenced the demure young lady to the police, to the court and the jail in general. Since then he had decided that it behooved the court that an investigation was necessary to determine if penal imprisonment was necessary for her punishment. The court declared that her crime in the investigation was not forgery, but rather obtaining money from a bank in which she had no funds.

Dougherty's statement. Attorney Dougherty made since his appointment and read before the court a telegram sent to Rev. William Mahoney of Janesville by a Detroit priest, that Miss Bumgart's previous check was of excellent reputation and that inordinate love for fine clothes were probably to blame for her fatal step. The Detroit priest recommended clemency in the sentence. Mr. Dougherty said that punishment is necessary for the offense but the general feeling among the authorities who knew about the case was that the defendant should not be subject to penal imprisonment. This is not a case for newspapers to dispose of, but rather it is up to the court to do what is just in the matter. The new sentence was recommended that would effect the punishment and the real purpose of giving the girl a needed chance to reform.

When the year's sentence in the Milwaukee school was pronounced by Judge Maxfield, the girl said, "Thank you," and broke into tears. As she left the court room she shook hands with the court officers and expressed thanks for the kindness rendered her. As she left the court room she heavily veiled her face to avoid inspection by numerous people assembled in the city hall corridor.

This morning it was decided to bring Miss Bumgart before court for resentencing after Judge Maxfield. Rev. William Mahoney, Attorney Dougherty and Chief Champion had reviewed her case thoroughly. During the proceedings in the court District Attorney Dunwiddie refused to make any recommendation. "I made my recommendations on the first time she was arraigned," said Attorney Dunwiddie this morning, "and do not feel that further words will effect the case."

CARDS SIGN PAPERS FOR FAIR GROUNDS

Representatives of the Janesville Cardinals baseball team and also of the local county league baseball organization appeared last evening before the members of the Janesville fair board of directors relative to securing the Driving Park baseball diamond for Sunday games. The Cardinals will use the grounds during the summer.

John Hall represented the Cardinals and announced that his organization wanted the grounds for twenty Sundays and were ready to pay the amount of $300 for the same, their guarantee to be a certified check for the amount. Jim McGuire of the county league team wanted the grounds for the same length of time for $200. The Cardinal representative was of the opinion that both organizations could use the grounds on alternate Sundays, but the county league wanted the contract as theirs in whole or not at all. Under the circumstances the grounds were turned over to the Cardinals.

WOMAN'S PAGE

SIDE TALKS

By RUTH CAMERON

CRITICISMS THAT "RIPE" ME.
"Yes, shoes nice, but she likes the merrily well."
It was said in criticism of a jolly, companionable girl in our neighborhood. I quote it because it is the kind of criticism that makes me indignant. "She likes the men pretty well?" And why shouldn't she? Sex attraction is one of nature's first laws. It is as inevitable for a young girl to be drawn toward young men as for the hawk to sing in the morning or the bee to open into the rose.
To think of nothing else but the opposite sex is, of course, wrong. And to show this attraction too plainly is foolish because that is to defeat one's purpose. A girl who does it any more than I do the pedantic, abnormal girl who pretends to have no interest in the other sex, very likely in order to cover up the fact that they have little interest in her.
The Woman Who Said She Wanted a Husband.
I know a woman who always said frankly (even at a time when men did not seem to be attracted by her), "I like men. I'm sorry they are not attracted by me. I hope to marry some time. I want to know love and marriage and everything else that makes a rounded life. If I am not married by the time I am thirty-three, I am going into a community where there are not more women than men, and where I shall have more chance of finding my mate."

Of course she did not go round saying this to casual acquaintances, only to people who might understand. She was not bold, she loved her work and she had many interests outside her interest in the other sex, but she wasn't afraid to admit that she was a woman.

Putting "Woman's Only Business" Above Business.
We were talking about a girl who has refused to accept a good business opportunity which would take her to another city. "She doesn't want to lose her chance to get married," said one young married woman with the scorn they are so apt to feel toward the maneuvers they recently practiced themselves.

"Oh, I should hate to think that," said an older woman who rather admires the girl.
But why should she hate to think that? Why, why, why?
Richard is at the "unlabeled" stage. He is a mate worth having. Why should the danger of losing him be a factor in making this girl not want to go away?

More Criticisms That "Ripe" Me.
"She's always thinking about a good time."
"She's always admiring about a good time."
"She's pretty, but she knows it."
These are other criticisms of young girls that arouse my ire.

Of course, she's always thinking about a good time. A young person who doesn't would be as unnatural as a young person with the stoop and pallor of age.

Of course, she likes admiration. If she is willing to pay too dearly for it, that's one thing, but to like it, that's another, and a perfectly normal state of affairs.

Of course, she knows she's pretty. Hasn't she eyes and a mirror? She needs to think of nothing else and not act conscious of it all the time, but unless she's a fool she can't help knowing it and being proud of it.

Many criticisms are sharper criticisms of those who speak them than of those against whom they are directed, and these seem to me to be emphatically of that class.

front to under the arm in back, curving the line in from the sleeve to get the desired length on the shoulder. Then rip the under-arm seams of the waist, lay it on the pattern and draw of the line upon the blouse with chalk. Next run a small tuck along this line, and hastily stitch it down with the edge toward the sleeve, and sew up the under-arm seams again. When finished it positively can not be told from the set in sleeve. This method can also be followed in making new blouses.

A convenient bag for trimmings from sewing, may be made on a wire frame which fits or clamps on to the end of the machine, and into which the pieces may be pushed from the machine. A large piece of paper spread over the floor where sewing is done will save much time and annoyance when the room needs to be cleaned. All threads, trimmings, etc., can be rolled in paper and dumped into waste-basket, and the paper laid away for another time.

In the sewing room, as everywhere else, the housewife needs to make her head save her motions and time. She should accustom herself to using all the modern attachments which come with her machine, as they save much work.

MEDLEY OF FASHION IN STAUD, OLD ROME

Roman Fashions Is Missing Declares Margaret Mason in Article on Styles.

(By Margaret Mason.)

When Roman with the Roman
Midst old ruins everywhere
The passion for antiquities
Quite permeates the air
It even has affected that they wear.

Rome, May 14: (By Mail to New York)—If you follow the letter of the old adage "When in Rome do as the Romans" you'll simply have to get yourself up like an old ruin or an archaic frump.

It's going to be somewhat of a task to write Roman fashions for the very plain reason that there "ain't" any such animal. To the Roman, maid or matron "clothes is clothes" and the vintage or period of construction matters naught.

Sunday afternoon tea at the Excelsior Hotel brings out all that is smart in Rome, however. That means literally the foreign element. Stunning Americans, chic French beauties, and languidly aristocratic Englishwomen. Then it is that Dame Fashion has a little chance to assert her up-to-dateness amidst a sartorial assembly as mossy with old as the fragments of Servius Tullius.

An attractive French Countess sipping tea was a vision of brunette beauty in a black chiffon and taffeta frock. The cloche skirt of taffeta was very short and finished with a quilling around the edge. The chiffon waist has an extremely low V-shaped neck line and the transparent sleeves were long and belled. A black hat of black tulle like an elongated skull cap fitted snugly over the waved and French twisted hair and unfurled a single tall black feather fan at the rear. Two large round pearls headed the hair and were thrust like eyes in each side of the crown. A single pearl gloved against the pink globe of each ear and a rope of audacious around her slender throat hung well below the bust and added the last touch of pearly perfection to this Parisian peach.

Black frocks for both afternoon and evening are favored above all else. On this side of the Atlantic, not alone in mourning effect for most of the black confections are the last word in airy frivolity.

At the Palace Hotel I saw a particularly fascinating one, on a blonde American who was dressed in a dance frock of black net over black satin. It was a large picture hat its only trimming a crown of black satin around the low transparent crown and a soft crown bow at one side.

Another smart tea and fashion centre at Rome is La Rumpelmayers of Rome. Situated in one of the towers of the old Colonna Palace it is an ideal spot to imbibe and socialize or if you can laugh encroaching on to scorn, a dish of Sicilian cassata to eat.

Along with your tea or cassata you may also feast upon an occasional smart bit of mince or drink in the details of a chic French tailleur or an American frock.

Many of the tiny white turbans so prevalent in London and Paris I usually in gardenia white grapes. They are the white caps on the ways of Fashion.

Just as the airrette reigns supreme on French and English millinery so likewise does the bird of Paradise in its natural coloring wear above Roman brows and noses. So lavish are they with these gorgeous yellow feathers that two and even three birds in their entirety are used on a single small hat. Hence used most that can be said of the typical bird of Roman fashion is that it's a bird.

As a matter of fashionable fact the sartorial status of style in the old home town of Romulus and Remus is peculiarly its own. Here the shop girls, those exponents of fashion's latest vagaries in U. S. dress haven't a chance. There's nothing doing in a "take me home for $2.98" creation that's a replica of Princess Jewell's Series. There's absolutely no fashionable footing to take the long step from a poor "working girl's" hobnailed brogan to a Countess's silk shoe.

Fashion in Rome is only for the favored few, the select of Rome, birth and wealth who mingle neither socially nor sartorially with the masses. As for the masses they lack the knack of the American shop girl, the Parisian grisette. They don't care an imported confection for 98 cents or 4 francs 90 centimes. Hopelessly and phlegmatically substitutes—fish and meat—indeed fish are being much worn in Rome this season, as I picked up several little things in that line myself.

THIRTY MILLION LOST IN SHIPS CASUALTIES REPORT UNDERWRITERS.

London, May 14.—Steamship casualties during the first quarter of the year are estimated by the Liverpool underwriters association as nearly thirty-two million dollars, of which eighteen million is attributed to the war.

Sailing vessels casualties are estimated at $3,500,000, which $2,500,000 is due to the war.

(The figures, of course, do not take into account the loss of the Lusitania this month.)

Glimpses of Married Life

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

Neil answered the phone one afternoon about four o'clock. Mrs. Scott's cheerful voice said:

"We are planning a picnic in a grove near our house and we want to send in the auto for you and Mrs. Parsons and the children, and Dr. Ellison will bring out the men for an out-door supper. Say you can come."

"Surely," Neil replied, "I shall be delighted. What shall I bring?"

"Oh, some sandwiches and pickles; a n-y-thing you have. We are going to roast corn and potatoes in our bonfire. The auto will be there in an hour. You can leave the baby at the house with my nurse; she is very competent."

There was the bustle of preparation, and promptly on the hour the two women and the children were speeding through the autumn sunlight, enjoying the delicious coolness of the day.

The women gathered sticks and started the fire; prepared the potatoes for roasting and made the coffee. The lunch was all spread and everything was ready when the auto full of men arrived with a basket of fruit as their contribution to the feast.

"I must tell a joke on Neil," laughed Dick, as they sat on the grass in front of the blazing fire.

"Wait till I get this coffee poured so I can hear it," called Mrs. Parsons. "Now I am ready," and she dropped into her place.

Neil was planning the baby's education and mapping out his future career. She was saying: "I do hope none of his teachers will tell him how unusually bright he is and so make him conceited."

Neil joined in the laugh at her expense. "That was really a compliment to the baby's father, which common politeness required him to return. Instead of doing that he makes fun of me publicly," said Neil in mock disgust.

"We will all agree that if the baby were not unusually bright he would not be like either parent," said the doctor cheerfully.

"Now, that's the proper attitude," said Neil, "you appreciate my point."

After the baskets were repacked the men brought wood and piled it on the fire. In the light of the high mounting flames they sat and told stories while the stars came out in the dusky sky.

"One would think from my carefree attitude that my young son had finished the course mapped out for him and was safely launched in life. I need not break up the party, but I must walk over to the house and see after my youngster. He will be tired and troublesome. By this time, I am sure," said Neil.

"We must all go," Mrs. Parsons rose. "It is my children's bedtime, and now that school has begun I do not like to have them irregular in their sleeping."

The men poured water on the embers, brought up the autos, and soon all were packed in and on their way home.

"What a carefree air everybody had. I can't remember ever having so perfect a time," said Neil.

"It's because Mrs. Ellison was not there. She was always a disturbing element and managed to create dissension on every occasion. How glad I am she is gone," remarked Mrs. Parsons.

"I imagine the doctor is, too," answered Neil.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Will you kindly publish the recipe for removing wall paper? THANK YOU.
Soak the paper thoroughly with warm water and then scrape it off with a putty knife. It is an enormous job.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: 1. I am a girl of eighteen and would like to ask you a few questions. Do you think black would be suitable for me to wear as I do not look good in white, and would like to wear black.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.
A Hardy Water-Filter If the Water is Muddy or Murky.—Take a piece of absorbent cotton and tie it over mouth of faucet. The water will be quite clear, as cotton catches most of impurities. Change cotton each day or so.

Use of Old Raincoat.—It often has parts good enough to make a raincoat for a small girl or make an apron for washday, cleaning floors and porches. All you have to do is wipe it off with a clean, wet cloth and it is ready for the next time you want to use it.

A very handy apron, as well as cheap and easily made, is fashioned from a yard of percale a yard wide with the straps cut, one off the length and one off the width, and one corner cut off for the top (this corner forming the pocket); the straps cross in the back and button on the sides.

THE TABLE.
Sweetbread Cutlets.—Soak sweetbreads and cleanse them. Boil them quickly in stock until done. When cold, trim off all fat and gristle and mince them with some slices of ham. Add to this mince some minced onion, some lemon peel, pepper and salt to taste and wash sweetbreads. Shape this into cutlets and fry them dipped in egg and chopped nut.

Mayonnaise Dressing.—Three fourths cup vinegar; fill up the rest of cup with water if the vinegar is too strong; four tablespoons sugar; one egg; one teaspoon mustard; a little butter size of walnut, one tablespoon flour. Put vinegar on stove to come to a boil, then mix rest together and add; take it off when it just begins to boil.

Cocoanut Puffs.—Three egg whites, two and one-half teaspoons cornstarch, one cup granulated sugar, two cups shredded cocoanut, one teaspoon vanilla. Beat egg whites and beat in cornstarch mixed with the sugar. Cook in double boiler, stirring all the time, until thick around edges; remove from heat, add cocoanut and vanilla; drop on buttered tins and bake fifteen minutes in slow oven.

Potato Doughnuts.—Two cups mashed potatoes; when cold add one and one-half cups sugar, two eggs, one scant cup milk, three teaspoons cream (or melted butter), one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon lemon, one-half teaspoon nutmeg grated (small). Four teaspoons baking powder, flour enough to roll.

ITCHING NEARLY DROVE A WHOLE FAMILY CRAZY

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 24, 1914.—"My husband had a rash all over his body, and soon the WHOLE FAMILY was in the same condition. It looked scaly and raised up on the arms and legs, in big bumps. This trouble burned and itched so that it would nearly drive one crazy. It was always worse at night, so we could not sleep. We all had this trouble for about two or three years, and during that time tried many remedies and prescriptions with no results. We tried Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap and it RELIEVED AT ONCE, and before the third jar of ointment had been used, we were all completely cured. It has been four months since we were cured, and there are no traces of the trouble." (Signed) Mrs. S. A. Clarkson, 1520 Lawn Ave.

Every druggist sells Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap, and physicians have prescribed them for 20 years in the treatment of skin troubles.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—Of Course, Mother's Memory Is of the Convenient Kind—

BY F. LEIPZIGER

EXERCISE AND GRECIAN BEAUTY

WHAT IT MEANS

Many thousands of women are nowadays paying attention to physical culture and the proper exercise of their body muscles, where, thirty years ago or fifty years ago there was no thought expended on this science, which is quite necessary to physical beauty. The reason the Greeks, both men and women, excelled in beautiful and symmetrical forms was because of the attention they paid to the proper exercise. Then, too, they were untrammelled by corsets, shoes and the inconveniences of clothing. To the minds of some women the idea of physical exercise conveys only the idea of hard fatiguing work. Mild exercise continued day after day is best for the body and spirits and health. Without proper exercise there can be no health, and without health there can be no real beauty.

There is no stronger proof of the sound remedial value of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription than that it restores the wasted form to its wonted roundness.

The mighty restorative power of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription speedily causes all womanly troubles to disappear—compels the organs to properly perform their natural functions, corrects displacements, overcomes irregularities, removes pain and misery at certain times and brings back health and strength to nervous, irritable and exhausted women.

It is a wonderful prescription prepared only from Nature's roots with glycerine, with no alcohol to falsify stimulate. It banishes pain, headache, backache, low spirits, hot flashes, dragging-down sensations, worry and sleeplessness surely and without loss of time.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. Address Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y.—Advertisement.

SHAWANO WOMAN VICTIM OF STOMACH

Mrs. Herbert Haire Gains Every Day After Taking Wonderful Remedy.

Mrs. Herbert Haire of Shawano, Wis., was a victim of stomach and digestive ailments. She tried many remedies and sought relief in many ways.

At last she decided to try May's Wonderful Remedy. The swift results astonished her. She wrote: "I am gaining every day since taking your remedy and tonic. Shall continue to take it until I am sure I am in permanent good health. Enclosed find an order for a dozen and a half bottles for my suffering friends, for I know it will cure them."

May's Wonderful Remedy gives permanent results for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments. Eat as much and whatever you like. No red distress after eating, pressure or gas in the stomach and around the heart. Get one bottle of your drug store now and try it on an absolute guarantee—if not satisfactory money will be refunded.

Thin People Can Increase Weight

Thin men and women who would like to increase their weight with 10 or 15 pounds of healthy "stay there" fat should try eating a little Sargol with their meals for a while and see results. Here is a good test worth trying. First weigh yourself and measure yourself. Then take Sargol—one tablet with every meal for two weeks. Then weigh and measure again. It isn't a question of how you look or feel or what you eat, but of how much you gain. The scales and the tape measure will tell their own story, and most any thin man or woman can easily add from five to eight pounds in the first fourteen days following this simple direction. And best of all, the new flesh stays put.

Sargol does not of itself make fat, but by mixing with your food, it turns fat sugars and starches of what you have eaten into rich, ripe fat producing nourishment for the tissues and blood—prepares it in an easily assimilated form which the blood can readily accept. All this nourishment now passes from your body as waste. But Sargol stops the waste and does it quickly and makes the fat producing contents of the very same meals you are eating now develop pounds and pounds of healthy flesh between your skin and bones. Sargol is safe, pleasant, efficient and inexpensive. Leading druggists in Janesville and vicinity sell it in large boxes—forty tablets to a package—on a guarantee of weight increase or money back.—Advertisement.

A FOOL AND HIS MONEY

By
GEORGE BARR M'UTCHEON,
Author of "Graustark,"
"Traxton King," Etc.

Copyright, 1915, by George Barr M'UTCHEON.

"No, indeed!" she did not explain any further than that, but somehow I knew that money isn't everything to a servant after all. "I hope you don't mind my borrowing your butler and footman for the evening," she went on. "Not that we really need two to serve two, but it seems so much more like a function, as the newspapers would call it."

It was my turn to say "No, indeed." "And now you must come in and kiss Rosemary good night," she said, glancing at my great Amsterdam clock in the corner.

We went into the nursery. It was past Rosemary's bedtime by nearly an hour, and the youngster was having great difficulty in keeping awake. She managed to put her arms around my neck when I took her up from the bed, all tucked away in her warm little nightgown, and sleepily presented her own little throat for me to kiss, that particular spot being where the honey came from in her dispensation of sweets.

I was full of exuberance. An irresistible impulse to do a jig seized upon me. To my own intense amusement and to Blake's horror I began to dance about the room like a clumsy kangaroo. Rosemary shrieked delightedly into my ear, and I danced the harder for that. The countess, recovering from her surprise, cried out in laughter and began to clap time with her hands. Blake forgot himself and sat down rather heavily on the edge of the bed. I think the poor woman's knees gave way under her.

"Hurrah!" I shouted to Rosemary, but looking directly at the countess. "We're celebrating!"

Whereupon the girl that was left in the countess rose to the occasion and she propped up with graceful abandon before me in amazing contrast to my jumping jack efforts. Only Blake's reserve and somewhat dampening admonition brought me to my senses.

"Please don't drop the child, Mr. Smart," she said. I had the great satisfaction of hearing Rosemary cry when I delivered her up to Blake and started to slink out of the room in the wake of my warm cheeked hostess.

"You would be a wonderful father, sir," said Blake, relenting a little. I had the grace to say, "Oh, pshaw!" and then got out while the illusion was still alive. (As I've said before, I do not like a crying baby.)

It was the most wonderful dinner in the world, notwithstanding it was served on a kitchen table moved into the dining room for the occasion. Imposing candelabra adorned the four corners of the table and the very best plate in the castle was put to use. There were roses in the center of the board, a huge bowl of short stemmed Marechal Niel beauties.

"I told you, Mr. Smart, that I am expecting my mother here to visit me week after next!"

She tactfully put the question to me at a time when I was so full of contentment that nothing could have depressed me.

"You don't say so?" I exclaimed, quite cheerfully.

"That is to say, she is coming if you think you can manage it quite safely."

"I manage it? My dear countess, why speak of managing a thing that is so obviously to be desired?"

"You don't understand. Can you smuggle her into the castle without any one knowing a thing about it?"

You see, she is being watched every minute of the time by detectives, spies, secret agents, lawyers and heaven knows who else. The instant she leaves Paris, bang! It will be like the start of a race. They will be after her like a streak. And if you are not very, very clever they will play hob with everything."

"Then why run the risk?" I ventured. "My two brothers are coming with her," she said reassuringly. "They are such big, strong fellows that—"

"My dear countess, it isn't strength we need," I deplored.

"No, no. I quite understand. It is cunning, strategy, caution and all that sort of thing. But I will let you know in ample time, so that you may be prepared." "Do!" I said gallantly, trying to be enthusiastic. "You are so wonderfully ingenious at working out plots and conspiracies in your books, Mr. Smart, that I am confident you can manage everything beautifully."

"And now let us talk about something else," she went on complacently, as if the project of getting the rest of her family into the castle were already on her mind. "I can't tell you how much I enjoyed your last book, Mr. Smart. It is so exciting! Would you be entertained by a real mystery?"

Very promptly I said I should be. We were having our coffee. Hawkes and

It Was the Most Wonderful Dinner in the World.

Blake had left the room. "Was tradition says that one of the old barons buried a vast treasure in the cellar of this—"

"Stop!" I commanded, shaking my head. "Haven't I just said that I don't want to talk about literature? Buried treasure is the very worst form of literature."

"Very well," she said indignantly. "You will be sorry when you hear I've dug it up and made off with it."

I picked up my ears. This made a difference. "Are you going to hunt for it yourself?"

"I am," she said resolutely. "In those dark, dank, grewsome cellars!"

"Certainly." "If necessary," she said, looking at me over the edge of the coffee cup. "Tell me all about it," said I.

"Oh, we shan't find it, of course," said she calmly. I made note of the pronoun. "They've been searching for it for two centuries without success. My—that is, Mr. Pless has spent days down there. He is very hard up, you know. It would come in very handy for him."

I glowered. "I'm glad he's gone. I don't like the idea of his looking for treasures in my castle."

She gave me a smile for that.

CHAPTER XIII.
The Countess Gives Me a Surprise.

FOR AN HOUR or more after leaving the enchanted rooms near the roof I lounged in my study, persistently attentive to the portrait of Ludwig the Red, with my ears straining for sounds from the other side of the secret panels. Alas! Those panels were many cubits thick and as staunch as the sides of a battleship. But there was a vast satisfaction in knowing that she was there, asleep perhaps, with her brown head pillowed close to the wall, but little more than an arm's length from the crimson waistcoat of Ludwig the Red. For he sat rather low, like a Chinese god, and supported his waistcoat with his knees.

Morning came and with it a sudden determination to get down to work on my long neglected novel.

"A fine morning, sir," said Hawkes in a voice that seemed to come from the grave.

"Is it?" said I, and my voice sounded gloomier than his.

"Send Mr. Poopendyke to me, Hawkes, immediately after I've finished my breakfast."

"Very good, sir. Oh, I beg your pardon, sir. I am forgetting. Mr. Poopendyke is out. He asked me to tell you he wouldn't return before 11."

"Out? What business has he to be out?"

"Well, sir, I mean to say he's not precisely out, and he isn't just what one would call in. He is up in the-admit—the east wing, sir, taking down some correspondence for the—for the lady, sir."

I arose to the occasion. "Quite so, quite so. I had forgotten the appointment."

"Yes, sir; I thought you had."

"Ahem! I dare say Britton will do quite as well. Tell him to—"

"Britton, sir, has gone over to the city for the newspapers. You forget that he goes every morning as soon as he has had his—"

"Yes, yes! Certainly," I said hastily. "The papers. Ha, ha! Quite right."

It was news to me, but it wouldn't do to let him know it. The countess read the papers, I did not.

It was nearly 12 when my secretary reported to me on this particular morning.

"Mr. Poopendyke," said I, "are you employed by me or by that woman upstairs?" "I would never have spoken of her as 'that woman,' believe me. If I had not been in a state of irritation."

He looked positively stunned. "Sir?" he gasped.

I did not repeat the question, but managed to demand rather fiercely. "Are you?"

"The countess had got dreadfully behind with her work, sir, and I thought you wouldn't mind if I helped her out a bit," he explained nervously.

"Work? What work?"

"Her diary, sir. She is keeping a diary."

"Indeed?" "It is very interesting, Mr. Smart. Rather beats any novel I've read lately. We've brought it quite up to date. I wrote at least three pages about the dinner last night. If I am to believe what she puts into her diary it must have been a delightful occasion, as the newspapers would say."

I was somewhat mollified. "What did she have to say about it, Fred?" I asked. It always pleased him to be called Fred.

"That would be betraying a confidence," said he. "I will say this much, however—I think I wrote your name fifty times or more in connection with it."

"Rubbish!" said I. "Not at all," said he, with agreeable spirit.

A sudden chill came over me. "She isn't figuring on having it published, is she?"

"I can't say as to that," was his disquieting reply. "It wasn't any of my business, so I didn't ask."

"Oh," said I, "I see."

"I think it is safe to assume, however, that it is not meant for publication," said he. "It strikes me as being a bit too personal. There are parts of it that I don't believe she'd dare to put into print, although she reeled them off to me without so much as a blush."

"Pon my soul, Mr. Smart, I never was so embarrassed in my life. She—"

"Never mind," I interrupted hastily. "Don't tell tales out of school."

He was silent for a moment, fingering his big eyeglasses nervously. "It may please you to know that she thinks you are an exceedingly nice man."

"No, it doesn't!" I roared trisyllabically. "I'm blamed if I like being called an exceedingly nice man."

"They wore my words, sir, not hers," he explained desperately. "I was merely putting two and two together—forming an opinion from her manner, not from her words. She is very particular to mention everything you do for her and thanks me if I call her attention to anything she may have forgotten."

"That is extremely gratifying," said I acidly.

He hesitated once more. "Of course you understand that the divorce itself is absolute. It's only the matter of the child that remains unsettled. The—"

I fairly barked a him. "What the mischief do you mean by that, sir? What has the divorce got to do with it?"

"A great deal, I should say," said he, with the rare, almost superhuman patience that has made him so valuable to me.

"Upon my soul!" was all that I could say.

Hawkes rapped on the door lucidly at that instant.

"The men from the telephone company are here, sir, and the electricians. Where are they to begin, sir?"

"Tell them to wait," said I. Then I hurried to the top of the east wing to ask if she had the least objection to an extension phone being placed in my study. She thought it would be very nice, so I returned with instructions for the men to put in three instruments—one in her room, one in mine and one in the butler's pantry. It seemed a very jolly arrangement all round. As for the electric bell system, it would speak for itself.

Toward the middle of the afternoon when Mr. Poopendyke and I were hard at work on my synopsis, we were started by a dull, mysterious poudrar on the wall hard by. We paused to listen. It was quite impossible to locate the sound, which ceased almost immediately. Our first thought was that the telephone men were drilling a hole through the wall into my study. Then came the sharp rat-a-tat once more. Even as we looked about us in bewilderment the portly facade of Ludwig the Red moved out of alignment with a heart rending squeak and a long thin streak of black appeared at the inner edge of the frame, growing wider—and blacker if anything—before our startled eyes.

"Are you at home?" inquired a voice that couldn't by any means have emanated from the chest of Ludwig, even in his mellowest hours.

I leaped to my feet and started across the room with great strides. My secretary's eyes were glued to the magic portrait.

"By the Lord Harry!" I cried. "Yes!"

The secret door swung quietly open, laying Ludwig's face to the wall, and in the aperture stood my amazing neighbor, as lovely a portrait as you'd see in a year's trip through all the galleries in the world. She was smiling down upon us from the slightly elevated position, a charming figure in the very latest Parisian hat and gown.

Dinner Stories

"Our home is in a frightful condition," complained the tenant. "One of the walls has bulged out at least six inches."

"Then you've got more room than you used to have," said the landlord. "I'll have to raise your rent five dollars a month."

There is a Chicago man, dwelling in one of the suburbs, who goes into the city every day to look after a mail order business.

One afternoon last winter he took the train for his home, but a terrific snowstorm was raging, and about half way to his suburb the train was snowed in. All night the passengers were imprisoned. Early in the morning they managed to reach a nearby telegraph station, from which the Chicago men sent the following message to the office:

"Will not be in the office today. Have not got home yesterday yet."

The conscientious girl worried so much over having paid for two eggs with bad money that soon the unconscientious girl also developed a conscience.

"It really is too bad that you cheated the poor man," she said, the next time they met. "I think I feel almost as bad about it as you do."

"Oh, don't worry," said the conscientious girl. "I am glad of it now. Both the eggs were bad."

Little Willie had been having trouble with the boy next door.

"I hope you remembered that a soft answer turneth away wrath," said his mother.

"Sure I did," replied Willie. "I threw a rotten apple at him."

CAPRICES OF KITTY

A novelization of the popular Bosworth, Inc., photo-play of the same name by Elsie Janis. Arranged in story form by Carl Horton Pierce.

Summary: Kit Bradley, orphan daughter of a wealthy manufacturer, a young girl buried with life and fun, starts out from Miss Vernon's Select Seminary one afternoon for a spin in her riding car. On the way she meets with a punctured tire, and while wondering how to get her feet out of the car, a rising young artist, who helps her out of her predicament, and then accompanies her to the school. The principal, Miss Vernon, meets again, at which time a turn to the school in company with the artist, who she says, in the spirit of fun, is engaged to him. Elated, the principal supposes that the latter would administer fitting rebuke and return the young lady to a friend of some time standing as a match for Kit. Instead of rebuking at the same time calling her attention to a fine time to see the man of her choice, that Kit shall not see the man of her choice for six months prior to her wedding. Kit, for various reasons, just to be near him and to see him again.

CHAPTER VII.
That evening while Elsie Janis in the "Fair Co-ed," Kit received an idea that appeared to her immensely. It was at the part where Elsie Janis appears in boy's clothes that the thought occurred to her: "Why not try this disguise to get into Jerry's studio?" she thought.

"That will do, that will do," retorted Jerry, in no mood to be trifled with. "I'll see you again tomorrow."

"At the usual time," asked Miss Vernon. "At the usual time," replied Jerry as he closed the door.

Kit getting desperate.
"Not if I know it!" thought Kit, who was getting desperate not only at the delay but at the familiarity with her sweetheart which no one knows how many women are taking. "Now, there's Miss Vernon," she said to herself. "She has Jerry hours every day. I haven't him any time at all. And I ought to have him because he really belongs to me—"

"It was during this reverie that Jerry returned; started for the clear whiskey and soda and his paint brushes—consequently.

Kit saw them coming. Cigars first. "Have a cigar," said Jerry.

"Certainly," said Mr. Dusenberry with a brave but with a faint heart.

Kit took the cigar, tried to light it without biting the end, off, blew so hard that she blew the match out, and the artist tried another. "Surely," thought Jerry, "this man knows very little about smoking cigars, but he's young. Perhaps he never smoked before." Then he tried the drink.

"Perhaps you drink," he suggested. "Oh, yes," said Mr. Dusenberry. "Say when," said Jerry. "We when," said Mr. Dusenberry weakly—falteringly—ready to faint.

Jerry poured out a good stiff drink which Kit promptly disposed of by throwing most of it behind the screen. By this time Jerry had begun to notice that there was something different about this young man. Something strangely familiar about the face, but he said nothing. Instead, he gave Mr. Dusenberry a good sitting, ending with "Now, Mr. Dusenberry, we have had a good sitting and I am going to ask you to come again at the same time tomorrow."

"How many sittings do you think it will take?" asked Kit.

"Three or four at least—perhaps more," replied the artist.

After some trivialities Kit then left, unaware that her lover really suspected her identity. Apparently, as she left the artist's door she started down the steps. But the moment he closed the door she hastened to her own studio to change her clothes.

FRECKLES

Now is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as the prescription ointment—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of ointment—double strength—from Badger Drug Store, or any druggist and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength ointment as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

TRY THIS IF YOU HAVE DANDRUFF

Are Bothered With Falling Hair or Itching Scalp.

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft and look and feel as it times better.

If you want to keep your hair looking rich, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for nothing destroys the hair so quickly. It not only starves the hair and makes it fall out, but it makes it stringy, straggly, dull, dry, brittle and lifeless, and everybody notices it. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

MILWAUKEE COUNTY MUST KEEP PROMISE TO GET FAIR MONEY

Appropriations of $255,000 to Stand if Board Gives Piece of Land for Grounds.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., May 14.—The 1913 appropriations of $255,000 for state fair improvements, including a new grand stand, will stand contingent only on the fulfillment of the Milwaukee county board's promise to donate a tract of land for an addition to the fair grounds. This was definitely determined in the senate last night when the repeal bill by a viva voce vote was non-concurred in. Prior to this, the Milwaukee county board had agreed to donate a tract of land for an addition to the fair grounds, but this was definitely determined in the senate last night when the repeal bill by a viva voce vote was non-concurred in.

The bill, of which Assemblyman Bradley of Hudson was the author, passed the assembly, but received an unfavorable report from the senate committee which had it in hand.

The Albers resolution was made the subject of a caustic speech by Senator Bichler, who saw in it a special purpose not made known and a design to discredit the state fair and its management. He said it was unusual to have a bill of this kind introduced by the governor, as the measure provided, rather than by the presiding officers or the senate committee on committees. He also pointed out the fact that the bill was introduced by the governor, as the measure provided, rather than by the presiding officers or the senate committee on committees.

At the request of Senator Hanson, Senator Everett of Racine, member of the state fair board, outlined the recent history of the fair and the board in this instance. He said the board had been asked to donate a tract of land for an addition to the fair grounds, but this was definitely determined in the senate last night when the repeal bill by a viva voce vote was non-concurred in.

The senate also passed the following bills:

Cunningham—Appropriating $10,000 for a site for a state hospital for crippled children.

Martin—Validating municipal contracts held invalid in the courts.

Hanson—Permitting the railroad commission to regulate speed of street cars.

Ricardus—Permitting incipient cases of tuberculosis to be treated in county hospitals.

Everett—Allowing appointment of non-residents as city engineers in second and third class cities.

Toung—Making school boards in commission cities consist of six members.

Judiciary committee—Repealing obsolete sections relating to granting of franchises to public utilities.

Corporations committee—Requiring actions for recovery of license fees by insurance companies to be brought in the Dane county circuit court.

Concurrence was voted in the following assembly bills, among others:

Everett—Allowing not more than four years.

Kuhns—Placing foreign insurance companies on the same basis as domestic as to taxes paid to the state of Wisconsin.

Donnelly—Providing for the exemption of temporary appointments for tax work in the city clerk's and city treasurer's office from the civil service law.

Hedding—For a compensation of $5 per day for civil service commissioners in first and second class cities for a maximum of 40 days per year.

Despite strenuous appeals by Senator Martin, the senate bill placing county institutions of Milwaukee under the civil service law and giving the governor power to appoint the civil service commissioners. Senator Martin said the bill would mean $9,000 extra expense for the county. He wanted the bill killed. He asked for the same fate for his own bill, introduced by request, bringing the county institutions under the civil service law, but allowing the county board to appoint the commissioners. This bill, he said, would cost the county $1,200 a year. Both were badly resisted, and credited the demand for their passage to the City club.

The proposal to lay over for more information was made by Senator Jennings, who, between two fires, admitted he did not know how to vote on the bills. The motion to lay over carried by a vote of 13 to 12.

Upon request of Senator Scott, his bill abolishing the state athletic commission was laid over until Thursday.

CONTINUE TO ENTER ACRE CORN CONTEST

Number of Contestants To Date Is Greater Than Was On 1914 List—Eighty Are Expected To Sign.

Promoters of the Acre Corn Contest are able nowadays to boast of their own success during the past several weeks in Rock county, especially in lining up the youths in this activity, and get them interested in the work that is going on.

To date the number of contestants in this contest, all of which are under 20 years of age, is greater than the total number that registered and tried for prizes last year. This speaks well for the contest booster, and it is considered the contest is yet young.

"No less than eighty contestants are expected to sign and possibly more," said L. E. Hartman, county Y. M. C. A. secretary, yesterday.

"With the interest at such a high pitch, this mark should easily be reached."

CITIES FAVOR BILL TO RETURN DOCK TAX

Ashland, Manitowoc and Superior Have Representatives at Madison in Favor of Nye Resolution.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., May 14.—Representatives of Ashland, Superior and Manitowoc appeared before the senate committee of the legislature yesterday afternoon in advocacy of the Nye bill to permit the state to return to the localities the amount of railroad taxes collected on dock property.

Senator E. F. Ackley owns a farm near Chippewa Falls. It is said, and is agreed because the electric line running near by stops only at a distant crossing, requiring pedal exertions that he deems are unnecessary. He has a bill requiring such cars to stop on signal at country crossings.

When the bill was heard in committee he was asked what means he would suggest for stopping cars. He proposed waving a handkerchief in the daytime and jocularly suggested that during the night the cars should be stopped by a red handkerchief or flag, not less than 14 inches square, in the daytime, or the waving or swinging of a bottle of lightning bugs in the nighttime. The amendment was asked to change the penalty from a dollar to a cent a basis. The bill itself is recommended for passage.

Mr. Gard said that the city had to police and furnish fire protection to this property. As for the city of Superior he declared that transportation leading industry. Only two other docks in the world had more tonnage than at Superior. When the Duluth-Superior harbor is considered it is the greatest shipping point in the world. These docks are valued at about $6,000,000 and he said that because of the abnormal amount of this property the city should be able to get back some amount in taxes for the protection furnished.

W. R. Foley, representing the city of Superior, said that two legislatures had approved of the merits of the bill and that the Nye bill was to surround a legal difficulty. He did not seem just to see an independent dock taxed by the city and that the adjoining dock, owned by a railroad, paid no taxes to the city.

Former State Senator A. W. Sanborn of Ashland said that about one-tenth of the value of all property in Ashland was tied up in dock property. He has tried to put the other nine-tenths of this nature through the legislature and favored this measure.

Clerk P. F. Leuch of Milwaukee and T. S. Smith of Ashland also favored the measure. The city attorney of Manitowoc was present to oppose the committee said that it had all the information desired. The bill also provides for the collection of the taxes on the docks for the past three years. No one appeared in opposition to the bill.

COMPULSORY TEMPERANCE REPORT WILL BE MADE BY RUSSIAN PROFESSOR.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Petrograd, May 14.—A report on the results of compulsory temperance, as introduced into Russia since the beginning of the war, has been prepared by Professor A. L. Mendelsohn of the Russian Society for the Preservation of the National Health.

In the opinion of Professor Mendelsohn the beneficial results of compulsory temperance are open to doubt. In proof of his contention he cites the reduction of alcoholic sickness in Petrograd and of the attendance in anti-alcoholic sanitariums, the decline in the number of cases of dipsomania and alcoholic insanity, and also of general mental affections. He notes also a reduction of indirect manifestations of alcoholic sickness, for example, from July to December there were in 1913 ninety seven suicides, while in 1914 the total was reduced to 14.

Other results of temperance, says the Professor, were an increase in saving bank deposits and a reduction in the number of small loans made with view to pawn shops. For the first two months of 1915 the savings banks of Petrograd received deposits exceeding the figures of the corresponding months a year ago by one million one hundred thousand rubles, while throughout Russia the deposits increased by a hundred million rubles.

SCARCITY OF TONNAGE IN CANADIAN SHIPPING.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Winnipeg, Canada, May 14.—The Canadian government is making every effort to provide the necessary tonnage this year for Canadian ocean trade, but in spite of all that has been done there will be a scarcity of tonnage until the war is over and the large number of vessels taken over by the British Admiralty are released again. In addition to the vessels that were assigned to the admiralty to carry war supplies from Canadian ports to France, further vessels are being assigned to the Canadian trade, notification being received of several within the last few days and another new vessel just being completed will also be added. A considerable number of sail vessels are going into the ocean service this year, being attracted by the high freight rates. There will be no less than 15 from Canada Steamship lines and probably some from the other lines.

GLOW BUG IN BOTTLE SIGNALS 'URBAN CAR

Carry a Bottle of Lightning Bugs When You Travel in Country Now to Find Cars at Night.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., May 14.—Interurban railways are confronted with a new problem, that of the proper signaling of cars at country crossings. It is now suggested by the senate committee that a "glow bug" be carried by the interurban cars. A red handkerchief will do the business in the daytime, and the hoisting of a bottle of lightning bugs ought to be sufficiently discernible to bring cars to a stop at night.

Senator E. F. Ackley owns a farm near Chippewa Falls. It is said, and is agreed because the electric line running near by stops only at a distant crossing, requiring pedal exertions that he deems are unnecessary. He has a bill requiring such cars to stop on signal at country crossings.

EKERN IS STILL AFTER HIS $5,000 COMPENSATION

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., May 14.—Senator Otto Boeshard of La Crosse and Insurance Commissioner H. L. Ekern appeared before the finance committee yesterday in favor of a bill appropriating $5,000 for compensating John A. Ayward and M. E. Ekern for the finding Commissioner Ekern in the ouster proceedings brought against him by Governor McGovern two years ago. Senator Boeshard said that in the Sulzer impeachment trial at Albany, which he said did not rank in importance with the question involved in the Ekern trial, $80,000 was allowed for attorney's fees by the state.

Little Irene while away visiting had grown weary of the caresses showered upon her by adoring relatives and friends. So when one demonstrative young lady begged, "Won't you give me just one kiss?" she shook her curly head and hissed: "No; I haven't any kisses left—only bites."

Congressional Legislation is Expected to Permit Commercial Killing of Seals at Pribilof Isles.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Washington, May 14.—Congressional legislation to carry out recommendations of a commission of scientific experts with view to resumption of commercial killing of seals at the Pribilof Islands in the Bering Sea will be recommended next winter by the Secretary of Commerce, William C. Redfield, according to present expectations. The ultimate future of the Alaska seal herd has been a vexed international problem for years.

Canada and Japan, which are interested financially in the American herd by the term of a treaty which abolished pelagic sealing, made an investigation contemporaneously with the American experts. Both governments have made representations to the United States that the condition of the seal herd warrants resuming sealing.

The report of the three American experts, submitted to Congress in its closing days and about to be published by the United States Government, selected by the National Academy of Science, the Smithsonian Institution and the Secretary of Agriculture at the instance of the Secretary of Commerce. These men investigated conditions on the Pribilof Islands last summer.

Their report, whose revision has just been completed, contains that the treaty effective December 15, 1911, between the United States, Great Britain, Japan and Russia, is essentially an agreement by which the four nations mutually agreed to right to take seals on the high seas in exchange for a share in land sealing. The United States reserved the right to suspend land sealing if the instance of the Secretary of Commerce. These men investigated conditions on the Pribilof Islands last summer.

Treaty Endangered.

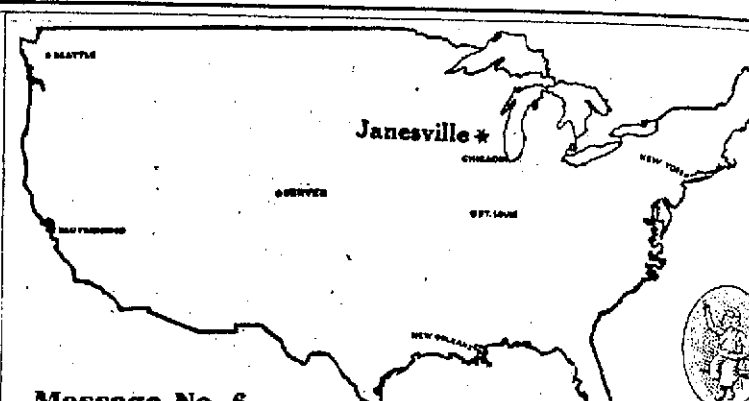

"The conditions of the seal herd in 1914," says the report, "is such that resumption of commercial sealing on a moderate scale in 1915 could be undertaken with confidence that the protection and growth of the herd would not be jeopardized in the slightest degree. The inference is clear that unless sealing is resumed agitation will continue and integrity of a most desirable treaty, endangered."

The voluminous report states that the people of the Pribilof Islands, though not natives, have for so long made the islands their home that they recognize no other "They are a people still semi-civilized," says the report. They constitute a heritage acquired by the United States with the islands and their valuable wild inhabitants and considerations of economy and humanity demand that they be accepted as such and managed with all possible wisdom and fairness.

Native Problem.

"Many changes in the methods of dealing with the natives seem to be necessary. In their management a great deal will depend on the personality of the officials in charge. It is believed that the work necessary to put the sealing plant on an efficient basis and the resumption in the near future of commercial sealing, accompanied by a better system of compensation and the opportunity of exchanging the reward of their labor according to their desires, will help."

When a run-down salesman calls on you, do you buy his goods? Aren't you afraid of his line because he looks as if no one ever gave him an order?

Same thing is true of a seedy town. To be prosperous it must look prosperous and show local pride.

to make the natives self-respecting and the people may become entirely self-supporting, efficient, happy community.

There are good reasons, from both economy and welfare of the seal herd, to resume commercial sealing at once, the report concludes. There should be only two restrictions to practically guarantee growth and preservation of the herd. These are that females should not be killed for their skins or for food and that breeding bulls should be maintained in numbers sufficient to supply one to each forty bearing cows.

The Straight Gate

By REV. JAMES M. GRAY, D. D.
Dean of Moody Bible Institute
Chicago

TEXT—Strive to enter in at the straight gate. For many, I say, it will be difficult to enter in, and shall not be able.—Luke 13:24.

The occasion for this warning of Jesus was a question asked him by one of his followers as he went through the cities and villages teaching and journeying toward Jerusalem. The question was, "Are there few that be saved?" As Matthew Henry says, it may have been a serious question, a curious one, or a captious one, but nevertheless it was one of deep and momentous importance to us. As another says, if one needs to know the number of the saved in this dispensation he has only to look around him and compare the ways of many with the word of God. He will soon come to the conclusion, if he is an honest man, that the saved are few. It is an awful conclusion, and our souls naturally turn away from it, but Scripture as well as fact shut us up to it. Salvation is offered to all, but few are willing to comply with its terms.

The Need of Effort.
Our Lord answers the question in an indirect way by a solemn exhortation to this duty, "Strive to enter in at the straight gate." Whatever others may think about it, he would have us feel the need for exertion. This need is not because salvation is so difficult in itself, for it is written that "Whoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved" (Romans 10:13). But the striving is necessitated (1) by the power of the counteracting influences of the world, whose gate is "wide," as we see from Matthew 7:13 and (2) because of the subtlety of false teachers, as we see in the same Scripture; and finally (3) because of the urgency of the times, inasmuch as the day is coming, and perhaps sooner than we expect, when "The Master of the house" shall "shut the door."

The Self-Deceived Ones.
Our Lord enforces his exhortation by describing that day, adding, "For many, I say unto you, will seek to enter in and shall not be able." The long-suffering of God towards men will some day have an end. It will be the day when our Lord shall come again, and we know not how soon it may be. The throne of grace will be removed then and the throne of judgment set up in its place.
But the most astounding part of it is that so many in that day will find themselves to have been self-deceived. In this place in Luke, and in the parallel place in Matthew's Gospel, Christ calls attention to four kinds of self-deception. He speaks of those who have been his guests, so to speak, eating and drinking in his presence; he speaks of those who have listened to his teachings; of those who have taught his word, and of those who have wrought his signs. None of these on that account merely have any claim upon his blessing in the life to come. What need there is for solemn self-examination here.

The Meaning of the Gate.
Of course when our Lord speaks of the "gate" he really means himself, and he said at another time, "I am the door; by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved and shall go in and out and find pasture. (John 10:9)." We enter in by believing on the Lord Jesus Christ as our Savior and confessing him as our Lord. Have you definitely done this? If so, why not do it now as you think upon these words? The distinguishing mark that we are saved, that we are his disciples, and that eternal glory is before us, is the fruit that we bear. Christ makes this very plain, in this same discourse, but blessed be his name, when we receive him as our Savior he gives us his Holy Spirit so that we are enabled to bring forth this fruit, indeed he himself produces it in us. Who would not trust himself to such a friend? Let me urge you to do it as the first and most important of all things for your well-being in time and eternity. I know there are other things, other allurements, holding you back, but what are they in comparison with this?

There was a shipwreck on the Pacific one or two winters ago, when a certain vessel went to pieces, on which there was a passenger who had with him a bag containing $1,500 in gold. Survivors said that he frantically offered that bag of gold to anyone who would place him on shore but his gold lay on the broken deck, picked under foot, no one stopping to pick it up. How this impresses us with the importance of salvation and eternal life above all things which this world can offer, and the importance of our striving to "enter in at the straight gate" while the opportunity offers.

DAVID SPARES SAUL.
(The Story.)

Here is a succession of the most ancient hero-tales of literature. They are unsurpassed: natural, spirited, helpful, impressive in the times and ways of a primitive age—customs, social, political, and military. The narrative has a higher claim for consideration than that. It faithfully exhibits the ethical evolution of the first man of that age. It shows the moral ideas which dominated him and which he in turn dominated his own surrounding nations. What enhances the value of the narrative is that it gives the real, not the ideal, man. * * * It is the fugitive and exile, the David of David's life, covering seven years of travail and extreme personal hardships and privations. It is the richest epoch in his life. It is an apprenticeship to a throne. Here, too, he learned to suffer what he afterwards taught in so many dear and myriads were born in the caves and wildernesses of this period. Some one pleases them to the grape-vines of Naples, grown out of the burnt lava. * * * It is spiritually significant that David, in his flight, armed and clothed himself in the sanctuary. He took his own trophy, the sword of Goliath, and ate the hallowed showbread, and ate the hallowed showbread, thus giving an example of violation of letter being coincident with keeping of spirit, a circumstance to which Jesus referred. The incident of madness feigned at Gath, a shrewd device by which the fugitive escapes after his identification by the coming next. Then the recruiting of an army of malcontents at the cave of Achish, the terrible slaughter by Saul of the innocent priests at Nob, the shameful and bitter fruit of David's unnecessary deception; the last interview between David and Jonathan; David's warning of Saul in the cave of Engedi; Nabab, the churl, his vineyard and his wife; Saul was a second time the life of the envious monarch was in pursuit of his hated rival. He was encamped at Engedi with a troop of three thousand men. David was his own scout, and approached the camp near enough to see that the posting of sentinels had been omitted. Taking a comrade as a guide, he passed the sentinels, and entered the camp and camped near enough to see that the posting of sentinels had been omitted. Taking a comrade as a guide, he passed the sentinels, and entered the camp and camped near enough to see that the posting of sentinels had been omitted.

THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEVOTIONAL SERVICE.
May 16, 1915. 2 Timothy 1:1-14.

WHY I BELIEVE IN MY YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIETY.
(Union Meeting, May 14, 1915.)
The demand today in every department is "efficiency." Team work is a recognized aid to it. To have a definite result to be achieved, a thorough and systematic program of procedure, to have a clear assignment of parts according to relative ability, then to "play the game" each with a united and all-together—that is what the score is all as to the religious life of football. And just by as many times as religion is more important than victory on the gridiron, by so many times ought we to prize the advantages of the society where victory is "score" in religion. The end of the organization should be kept in plain view, one should know the program, take the part assigned with pride and pleasure, and then do it with joy. This is a case where one and one is more than two.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE SOME QUESTIONS ON PERTINENT SUBJECT

Lycurgus Asks Why the Wheels of Justice Are Clogged by a Pretty Face.

Way back in the history of the ancient, Lycurgus was a noted law maker among the nations. His laws today stand as an example of pure reason and common sense. It is perhaps for this reason I have chosen the name Lycurgus for this article, which I trust will find space in your next issue. I do not mean I shall be of the pure diction or particularly concise, but I desire to call attention to some facts that I think the public should be enlightened on.

I am going to draw a deadly comparison. I know that comparisons are odious but in this case in view of the fact I was not interested in either case I feel I can do so with equanimity. First let me recall to your minds the case of a young man by name, James O. Hoffman. He was arrested for passing checks to which he had signed another man's name. The date was early in February.

The young man was arrested. The case continued, I believe, according to court record, if I am remiss in any particular please correct me. Then came the verdict, three years in state prison. Now, mind you, Hoffman has a wife and child in Iowa, and he is not defending Hoffman nor his method of obtaining money, but I am calling attention to his wife and child. He went to state prison. Any possible income that his wife and family might have obtained from the man committed by the law to aid and support them was rudely cut off for three years or until his sentence was ended. I am informed that the sentence was three years. His wife and child suffer in the meantime despite the urging that he be given a commitment term sentence. Have you placed that firmly in your mind? If you do, let me say to you that I am not making any argument a few moments and see the sequel. It is not as pleasing to my point of view but you may differ with me for the second tale is of a pretty woman.

I am not violating any confidences when I say that Agnes Smith, alias Bumgart, alias, no one man knows how many other names, was arrested in this city last Friday after obtaining forty dollars from a Jansville bank on a check which was improperly drawn—obtaining money under false pretenses. I believe is the technical term applied in the warrant. Arrested on information furnished by one of the nation's largest detective agencies, who issued a circular with her description as a warning to bankers that she had been working the same game throughout the western Pacific coast and in Chicago. Arrested after information had been obtained by local banks that she was wanted in various cities of the state for similar offenses. In fact, arrested with the money she had obtained on a bad check in her pocket. Do you grasp this fact?

Taken into court on Saturday morning, she pleaded guilty. Waived the preliminary examination, I am told, and was out of the city at the time and have not examined the court records to verify this. She was adjudged guilty and sentenced to one year in the Wisconsin state prison at Waupun for the crime for which a family had been sentenced to three for, on February 4th, because this system of passing forged checks must be stopped. Do you catch the force of my argument now?

Not only had Agnes Smith, alias Bumgart, alias perhaps a dozen other names been caught red-handed, but the detective agency employed to run her to ground showed evidence where she had proven herself no nice at the game, but an expert. She had bequeathed not only bank tellers, but business firms, and obtained money enough to take her sister and herself to the Pacific coast through the big exposition and back again and then to a private rooming house in Milwaukee.

One year in prison after arrest and conviction of obtaining forty dollars. One year for punishment for the crime for which a family had been sentenced to three for, on February 4th, because this system of passing forged checks must be stopped. Do you catch the force of my argument now?

kees, where they lived in affluence while she slipped out of the city by day to some nearby community to raise funds for future pleasures.

But I am ahead of my story now. She told after sentence, I am informed, that she did not want to be released from the county jail. She made charges against an official there. Right here I want to state that I would as soon believe that official's statement that the girl's story was a lie as believe hers, a self-confessed criminal, that it was correct. But she prevailed upon the court to place her in some other custody. Then comes the climax. The girl was a self-confessed wrongdoer. She had pleaded guilty and been sentenced and the only delay when the sheriff could not take her to Waupun on Saturday. Now comes the plea to the state board of control, in fact to the governor, for clemency. I will not say who made this plea, but it was made and he related it to others in person, no longer in stating these facts. He even alleged that the wrongs of the young girl, Monday, according to the information, the public are informed that the sentence had been set aside, the case and the girl meantime was sent to the county poor farm, in charge of former Sheriff Whipple, until brought into court on Monday next when the report of the investigation will be made.

This girl absolutely passed checks to the extent of several hundred dollars. She is smooth. She is pretty. She is smooth. She is not the product of a rural community where right and wrong are clearly defined. She is a city product. Her tale is plausible. I will quote from one of the papers I consulted me on the matter and said: "Every year my bank pays for police and detective protection. We safeguard against the passage of forged checks and depositions by a substantial fee. This girl was run down through the work of one of the best detective agencies of the country. She was listed as a bank operator and we were warned against her. She was arrested here on the description sent out. She confessed her crime. She was sentenced. Why this delay in sending her to prison to receive her just punishment?"

There you have it. How could I resist this man, a client of mine, in view of the public conditions? I leave it to the public to make its own solution. One man gets three years for forging a check for twenty dollars or more, leaving a wife and child to suffer during his absence. A pretty girl comes along and cashes a check for double the amount and she is feted and treated as an honored citizen. While every means possible is invoked to save her from a prison sentence. Is this law? Is this your interpretation of the meaning of the statutes that a pretty face can win leniency while a man who errs is given the severe sentence.

The eyes of justice may be blinded, but I believe that if in the present case the true and strict interpretation of the law is not followed, the bandage from the eyes of the goddess will be torn aside long enough to see which way the scale of justice turns.

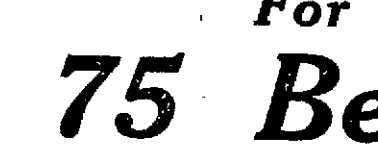

Signed Lycurgus, the lawmaker.

SOCIALISTS ADVOCATE SCHOOLHOUSE LUNCH

Members in Assembly Favor Plan Under Option of School Board. Bill is Heard.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., May 14.—Several in the assembly socialist contingent urged favorable consideration of the Smith bill allowing school boards to provide lunches to school children at the board's option. The bill was heard by the senate public welfare committee yesterday. Assemblymen Smith, Minkley, Metcalfe and Kent supported it and it was opposed by Frank J. Kusta and J. H. Gleason, of Milwaukee, representing the Catholic Union. The socialist members denied it was a purely socialistic measure, saying that so-called progressives and many states in the assembly had voted for it, and that Milwaukee newspapers antagonistic to the socialistic party had endorsed the plan. They declared that thousands of school children go to school hungry and that poor scholarship is the inevitable result.
The two opponents of the bill declared there was no considerable demand for this legislation and that if lunches are provided for pupils they should be paid for by the pupils or their parents and not out of public funds.
City Clerk P. F. Leuch of Milwaukee suggested that if the plan is taken an advantage of by all school districts in this city, it would add several hundred thousand dollars to the tax mill and require an additional mill tax for the schools.

DAIRY FACTS

PURE-BRED SIRES ARE BEST

Selection of Herd Bull is of Greatest Importance—Avoid Contagious Abortion and Tuberculosis.

Farmers everywhere are beginning to appreciate the need for pure-bred sires. In dairying the selection of the herd bull is of the greatest importance because he is at least half the herd from the breeding point of view. His influence on the characteristics of every calf born in the herd is as great as that of the dam of the calf. If he is a pure-bred animal used on grade cows, his influence will be more than half because his transmitting powers in breed characteristics will be stronger.

No bull whose dam and paternal grand-dam were not capable of producing 300 pounds of butterfat in 365 days should be used for breeding purposes if good results are expected. It would be much better if this premium were set at 350. The prudent dairyman will select a calf from a cow which produced 400 pounds or more of butterfat.

If the use of bulls from dams and paternal grand-dams producing less than 200 pounds of fat were prohibited by state law it would be a long step in advance. Much damage has been done by unscrupulous and ignorant breeders, who have sold, for breeding purposes and at low prices, pure-bred male calves from cows which did not pay for their keep, but had a long line of pure-bred ancestry. In getting bulls from other herds be sure that they are healthy. It is especially important to avoid contagious abortion and tuberculosis. Satisfactory young bulls of breeding age cannot always be purchased easily, and therefore it is always best to have a young bull growing up to take the place of the older herd bull.

DAIRY NOTES

The tubercular cow is a menace to public health.

If you expect a cow to produce regularly she must be fed regularly.

Kindness and regularity in handling dairy animals yield profitable returns.

The cream separator is one of the necessities of the all round dairy farm.

If you are manufacturing butter the best way to sell it is to the special customer.

If we cannot get the best cows there are, let's get the best we can and then work for better.

The yield and character of a dairy cow's milk is directly influenced by the character of her surroundings.

Begin this week to dig that pit silt. You will be so pleased with results that you will dig another one next year.

The man who considers foot-and-mouth disease lightly is the very one we would expect to light his pipe in a powder factory.

It is not advisable to milk cows before calving except very heavy milkers whose udders become so distended as to cause suffering.

In handling hogs on the dairy farm the shorter the fattening period the greater the profits. Remember this and feed accordingly.

An important point to inquire about in buying a cow is the milking record of the sire's dam and you must know what she eats and what she yields. Either alone is not sufficient.

PORTION OF SMITH HOME DESTROYED BY FLAMES

Evansville, May 14.—At 9:30 last evening Miss Mae Palmer noticed flames shooting from an ash barrel at the rear of the Edgar Smith residence, on First street, and sent in a fire alarm. The local company responded immediately, and although the neighbors formed a bucket brigade and the fire gained rapidly, it was not until the fire department arrived that the back part of the building. Fire extinguishers and the firemen soon got them under control, but not until the rear of the house was practically destroyed. The upright was uninjured except for the damage done by smoke and water. Loss is covered by insurance.

Escapes Serious Injuries.
A serious accident was narrowly averted yesterday at the D. E. Wood Butter company plant, when the coat of Robert Miller, one of the employees, became caught on the pulley while Miller was oiling a bearing on the line shaft. He was drawn over the shaft and nearly stripped of his clothing. Fortunately the engineer was standing near and threw off the clutch, stopping the shaft. His arm was considerably burned, no other serious injury being experienced.

Big $14.75 Suit Sale

A Wholesale Clearance of Suits

YOU get the advantage of the highest quality at a good deal less than it's worth when you come here tomorrow; we never have anything but the highest grade of merchandise for sale at any time; price reductions don't lessen the quality.

IT'S really a very remarkable opportunity we're offering you in this clearance of suits; the values represented by the $14.75 price are the most extreme we've ever offered.

YOU can easily understand the reason for this remarkable sale. We bought a manufacturer's surplus of some 300 suits at much less than they would ordinarily sell for. You get the advantage.

SIZES for any man, slim, stout, regular, tall or short. Fine worsteds and cassimeres, made up in the very latest styles. All priced at $14.75. This is your opportunity. Coming down tomorrow?

HIRSH - WICKWIRE - CO'S
Fine Suits $12.50 to $30.00

There's a certain name that represents perfection in every line—in clothing it's "Hirsh-Wickwire." First point of superiority is fit—that smooth, custom fit and advantageous appearance that counts for a lot. And then there are the woollens—they're the pick of finest looms. Men who seek suits of custom character diverted from the custom price should choose "Hirsh-Wickwire" Suits, $22.50 to $30.00.

Summer Furnishings

Very best treat we've spread for you in many a day—our furnishings department is the mecca of men seeking comfort these days. Soft shirts with collars to match and soft cuffs, solid colors, pin and pencil stripes, $1.50; Pajamas for summer, $1.50; Sheer Silk Hose, 50¢ and many other items.

Summer Straws

It's the open season for Panamas and Bangkoks; they've never been quite as popular as they will be this season. They weigh "less than a whisper" you'll hardly realize you have one on; they're as comfortable as your hair—$5.00 and upwards. Those who are "standpatters" for sailor and soft braids will find ours the largest and best showing in Janesville—Milans, Semmits, Splits, Jap and China braids, etc., $1 upwards. The very best $2 straw hats in Janesville are here.

Summer Oxfords Ready Now

Now comes the summer of your discontent if you aren't fitted with proper oxfords. Feet show a tendency to swell and perspire and grow thoroughly painful. We'll eliminate all that for you—by fitting you correctly, comfortably and scientifically. Lots of fine lasts for men in all leathers $2.50 to $5.50. The very best ones in Janesville are yours at $3.00, $3.50 and $4.00. Women's Oxfords, all sizes and the very latest styles, $3.00, $3.50 and $4.00 per pair.

Believe Slik Unclean.
The Mohammedan does not wear silk because it is the product of a worm. He regards it as unclean.

ABE MARTIN

When a girl can't say she's supposed to be intellectual. Out o' money out o' mind.

Rain Causes Peevishness.
Hotel men say that on rainy days their guests are peevish and require twice as much attention as usual.

SOAP IS BAD FOR THE HAIR

Soap should be used very sparingly, if at all, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it. The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified coconut oil (which is pure and greaseless), is cheaper and better than soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified coconut oil at any pharmacy, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

EDGERTON BAKER TAKES OWN LIFE

Hans O. Jacobson, Despondent, Missing Three Days, Found Hanging to Barn Loft Rafter This Morning.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Edgerton, May 14.—Hans O. Jacobson was the proprietor of the Edgerton bakery until it burned last February. Having a little money he invested it in more equipment and a building was rushed to completion for him. A carload of machinery is in the local freight yards now consigned to him.

Rumors of financial losses to a similar establishment in Chicago have been rife for some time past. He seemed gloomy and despondent. Monday night he disappeared. Searchers failed to find him.

This morning Henry Stricker, a saloonkeeper, went into his barn loft to pitch hay to his horses. In the dark, he found his body struck against some hanging object which moved momentarily as a pendulum. Feeling of the swinging object he discovered it a corpse.

Hastily summoning help the remains were cut down. Everybody here knew Hans Jacobson, the baker. It was him.

Investigation showed that the deed was prearranged. A small overturned box below the rafter around which he had tied the rope which was noosed about his neck gave mute evidence of suicide.

The body was in a bad state of decomposition. District Attorney Dummie of Janesville was located on the telephone and notified of the fact by Chief of Police Springer. No inquest was deemed necessary.

A widow, three sons and a daughter, all small children, survive. The remains this morning were interred in a cemetery vault.

Conclusion is that Jacobson, worrying over his fire loss and on the rumored setback in Chicago, took his life while despondent.

WHIRL OF MIRTH TABLOID IS GOOD

Vaudeville Offering Presents Some Very Excellent Voices.

A capacity house witnessed the vaudeville offering at the Apollo last night when Peppie and Shean presented their tabloid "The Whirl of Mirth." The entertainment given was very satisfactory, the number of good voices being larger than is usually found in such an aggregation.

The attraction is made up of four large vaudeville acts and the combination is one that will please any kind of an audience. There are sixteen people in the company, including director, wardrobe mistress and manager.

The Morrette Sisters are wonderfully versatile in their musical ability. They have fascinating little ways and play a number of instruments, their best being the violin and cello.

The Metropole Quartette is without a doubt the best quartette of male voices which has appeared here. The O'Connor Sisters, five in number, have a very neat singing specialty with voices that blend beautifully. Hilton and Hughes, the funmakers, are German comedians with a program of good stuff. The show is conspicuous for the special scenery and costumes.

"The Whirl of Mirth" will continue at the Apollo until Sunday night.

(Notices furnished by the theatres.)

Painting Points.

When preparing paint remember that better results are obtainable from several applications of thin paint than from heavier coats. Of course, it takes longer to do the work. Paint put on in thin coats and allowed to dry, lasts much longer and will not flake off as is often the case when heavier coats are applied. When very fine results are wanted rub down each coat after it has thoroughly dried.

H. P. Corbin and his machine.

H. P. Corbin of Toledo, O., has invented an airplane entirely different in most of its vital points of construction to any of the types of aeroplanes now in use. He believes it will revolutionize aeronautics. The principal mechanical points of advantage claimed for Corbin's invention are: It carries all weight below the point of suspension; all controls are different and simplified; every support and part is rigid; the machine will support at least 175 pounds on extreme tip; the machine is easily taken apart, and when packed the largest piece is but five feet long; the machine is also much lighter than the Wright machine, can get off the ground in a distance less than 200 feet, and in alighting can be stopped almost instantly. The planes are 29 feet from tip to tip. The engine will develop 80 to 100 horsepower and a speed of approximately 1,625 revolutions a minute.
